Note: the original pages are out of order here. Mary Jane is at the end of a page, but the five children at the top of the next page are not hers. Her children are at the top of the second page over, image 4 in the Ancestry.com grouping. What happened was that on each page, the households were originally numbered starting with one. Then someone renumbered the households in a single sequence and, in the process, got at least pages 3 and 4 out of order, thus making the sequencing off.
